

EVERYBODY LIES ...

EXCEPT FOR DATA

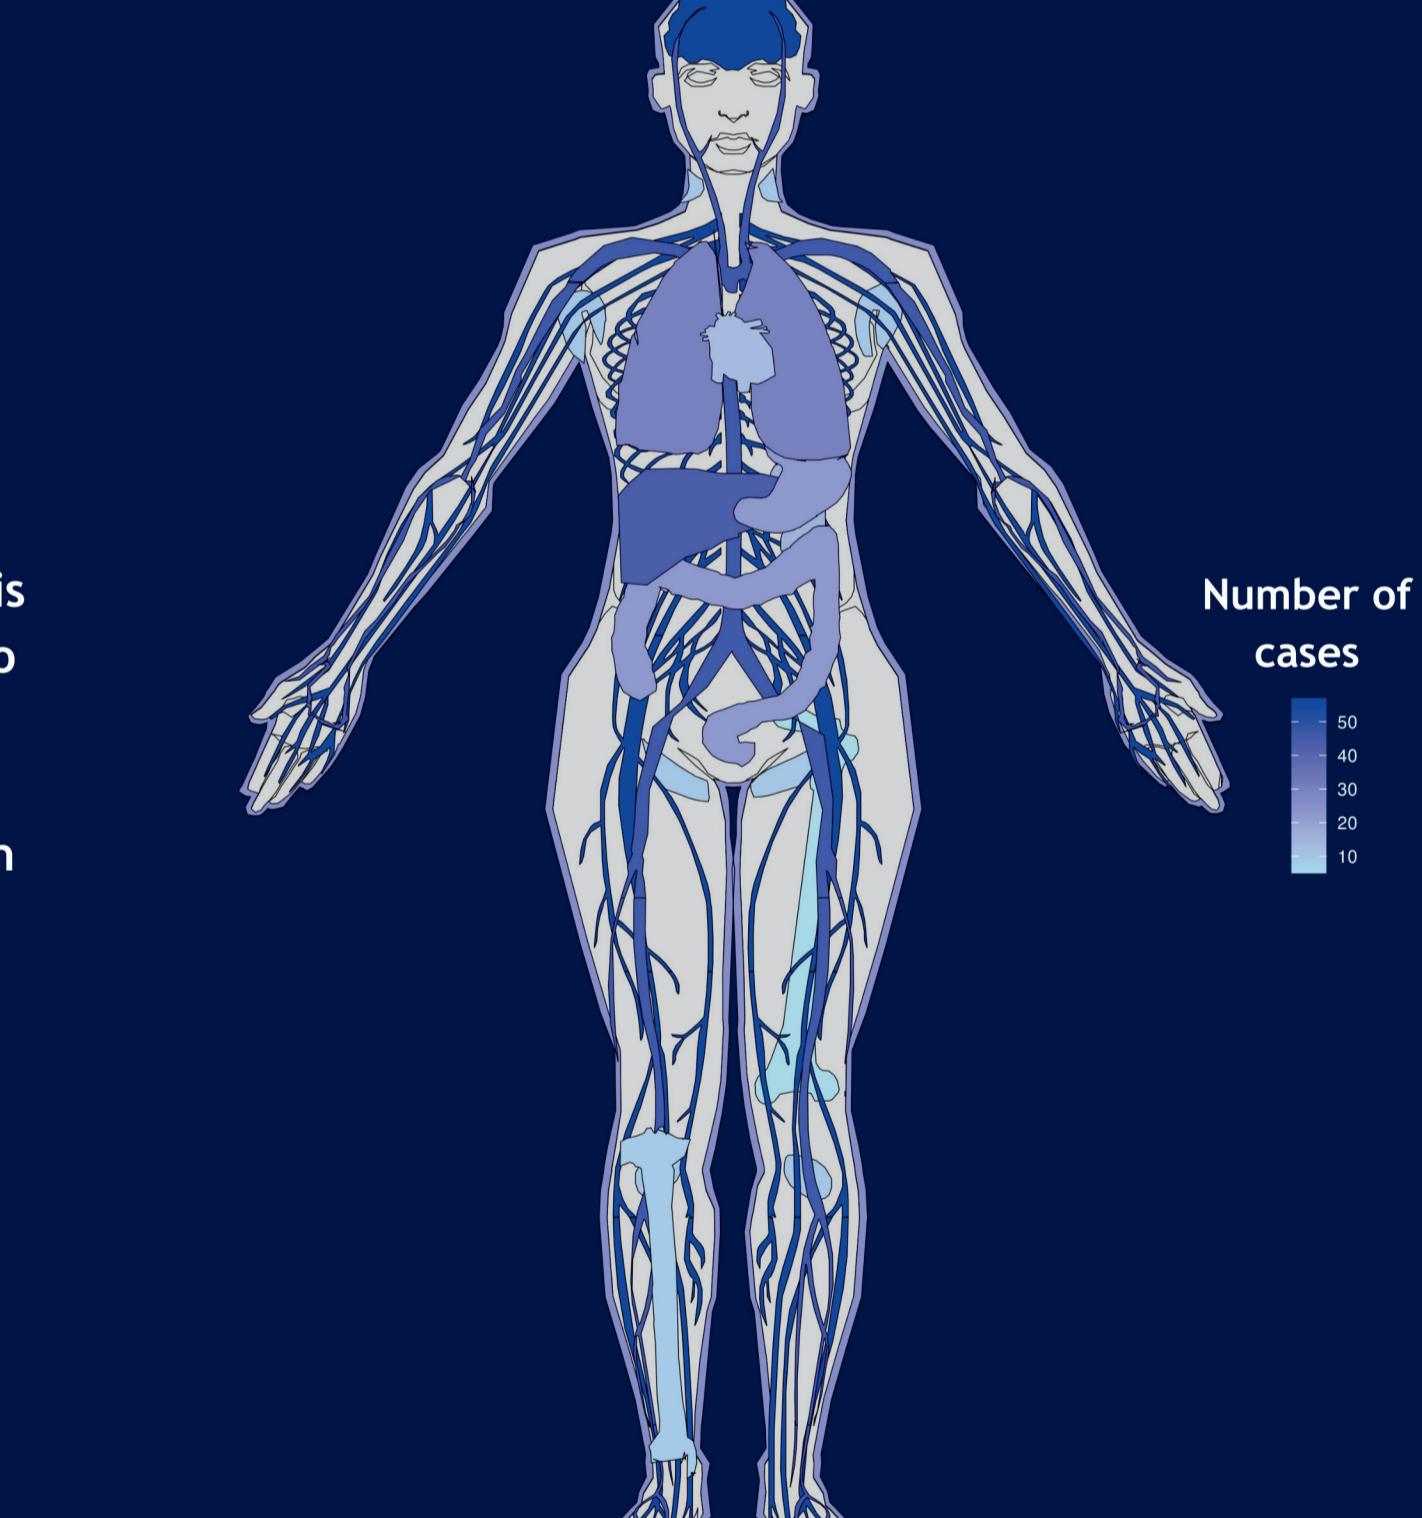

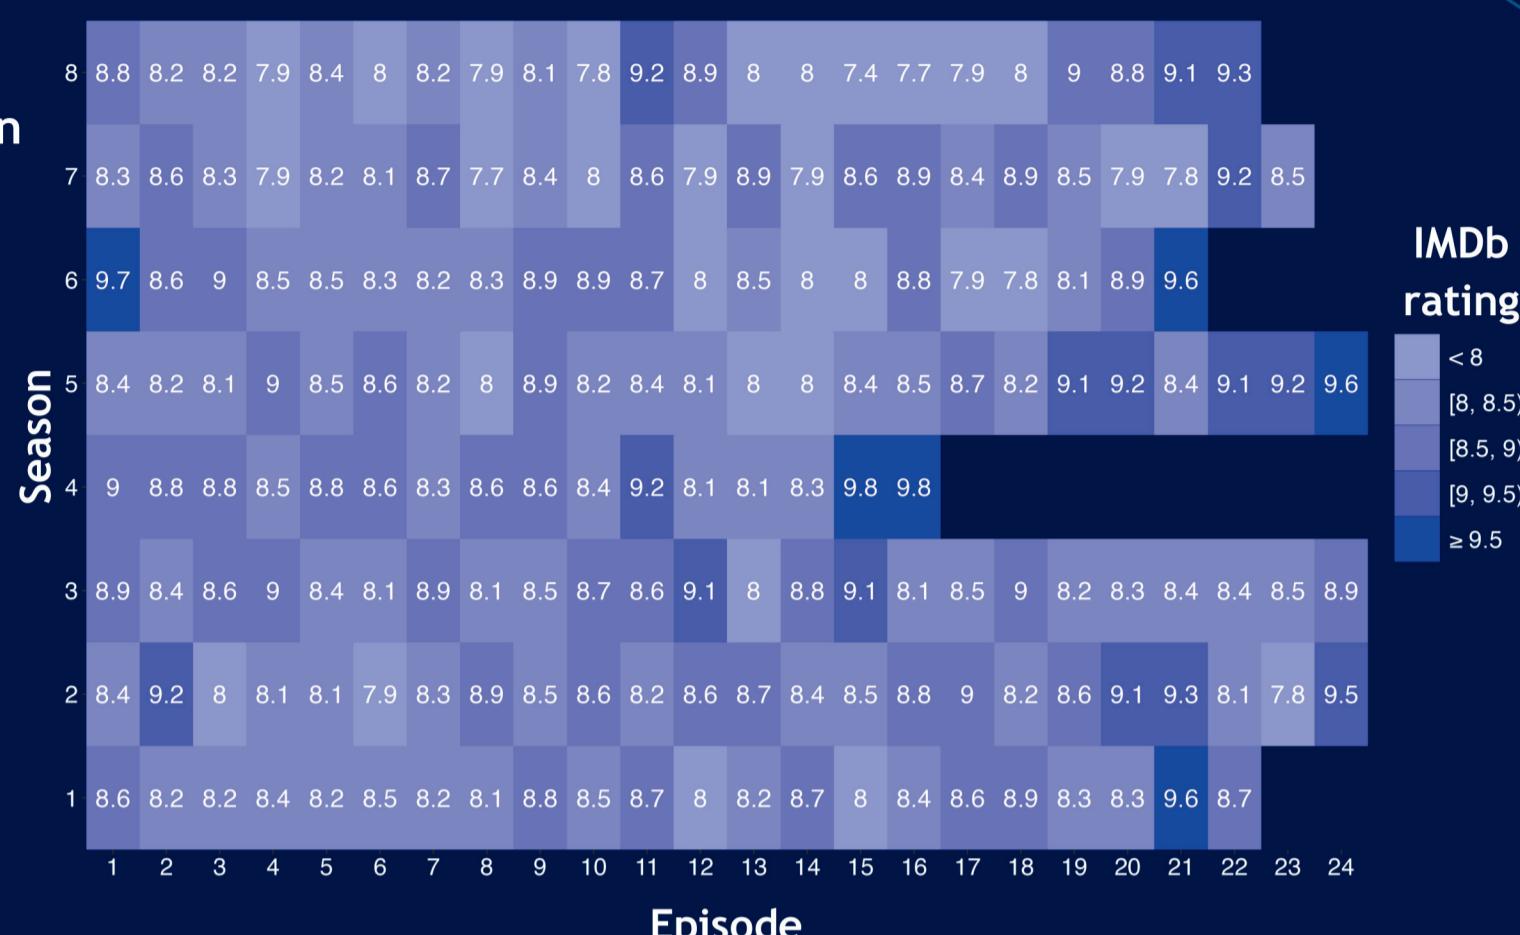

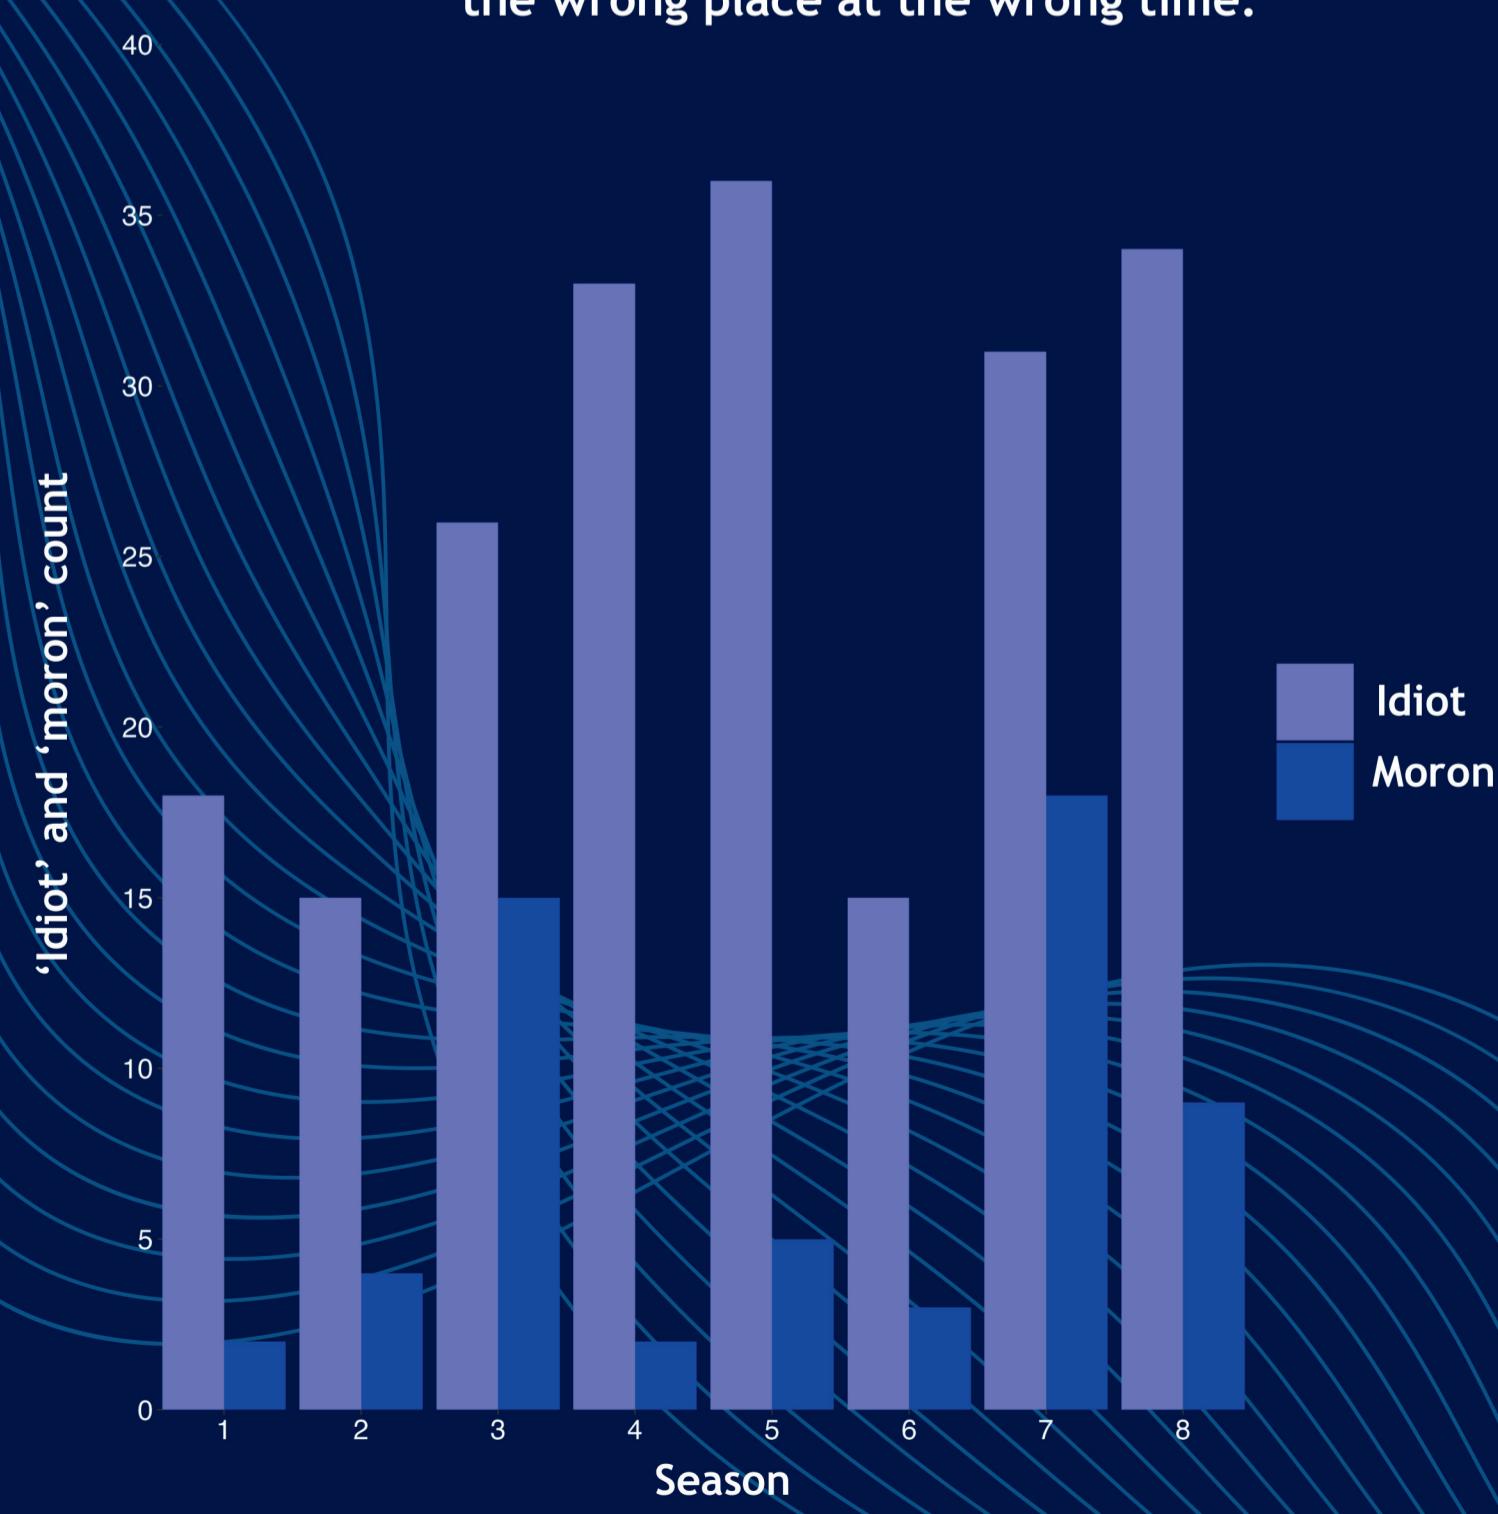

THE HOUSE PHENOMENON

House M.D. is one of the most popular and successful series. As it usually happens when a TV series becomes this long, last seasons have received lower ratings. Moreover, there is a substantial loss in viewership noticeable at the end of the fourth season. Potential causes may be changes in House's team as well as the plot concentrating more on the non-medical aspects of the story.

PASSION FOR PEOPLE

House is not only known as a medical genius - his defining feature is frequent sarcasm and antisocial behavior. In a way, it is possible to measure how big of a jerk he is. The plot below shows how many times he has used words 'idiot' and 'moron', regarding his colleagues, patients, or random people who just happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time.

(UN)POPULAR DISEASES

House's teams were taking care of patients with difficult cases of unique illnesses. The diagnosis was almost always different, with the most popular disease being porphyria - diagnosed 3 times. Therefore, instead of considering the frequency of diagnoses, the anatomogram above concentrates on the most frequently affected organs. If you thought you heard 'the disease has spread to their brain' a lot while watching - you were not wrong! The popularity of this line is confirmed by data - the brain was the most commonly affected organ.
